ALLUVIA PARCEL MALBEC

Alluvia Vineyard in Gualtallary, Tupungato, Uco Valley

VINEYARDS

This Malbec is sourced from a single plot of only 2.4 hectares from block No. 8 in our Alluvia Vineyard, located in Gualtallary, Uco Valley, at 1,350 meters (4,430 feet) above sea level. This bush vine vineyard lies on an old streambed, and its soil contains medium alluvial stones covered with calcium carbonate intermingled with sand and limestone encrustations. This is one of the most nutrient-poor soils – organic matter is almost zero – and is well-drained. The climate is marked by cool days and cold nights.

WINEMAKING

This wine is produced by micro-vinification in small containers, in very limited lots, and entirely by gravity. Once in the winery, the grapes undergo a double sorting process, first of bunches and then of berries. The selected berries are sent to a temperature-controlled room (below 20 °C) where alcoholic fermentation – from wild yeast – and malolactic fermentation take place. The post-fermentation maceration lasts 15 to 20 days. The wine is then racked to 50% new French oak and aged for 22 months.

TASTING NOTES

Deep black-violet color. The nose has great aromatic complexity, with intense black fruit aromas – blackberry, blueberry and raspberry – combined with marked mineral graphite notes. The palate has great breadth and balance, with firm tannins that make its finish very persistent. Hallmarks of Gualtallary wines include mineral notes, freshness, firm tannins and long aging potential.
