

This diagram illustrates a circuit board layout. The central component is connected to various points on the board via a network of traces. The layout is contained within a rectangular frame.

This diagram illustrates a circuit board layout, similar to the one on the left. The central component is connected to various points on the board via a network of traces. The layout is contained within a rectangular frame.