

The counterweight is used to balance the load being lifted. It is typically made of concrete or steel and is attached to the end of the jib. The counterweight is usually equal in weight to the maximum load that the crane can lift. This allows the crane to lift the load without tipping over.

The counterweight is used to balance the load being lifted. It is typically made of concrete or steel and is attached to the end of the jib. The counterweight is usually equal in weight to the maximum load that the crane can lift. This allows the crane to lift the load without tipping over.