

The fracture fragment is displaced downwards and to the right. This is a typical pattern for a vertebral body fracture. The fracture line is horizontal, and the fragment is displaced in a direction consistent with the fracture line.

FACET JUNE

The fracture fragment is displaced downwards and to the left. This is a typical pattern for a facet joint fracture. The fracture line is vertical, and the fragment is displaced in a direction consistent with the fracture line.