

The intersection point is the point where the two lines meet. It is the only point that belongs to both lines.

QUESTION

A vertical line and a horizontal line intersect at a point. What is the measure of the angle formed by the two lines at the intersection point?

40°

The angle formed by the two lines at the intersection point is a right angle, which is 90 degrees.