

QUESTION 1578

Which of the following is a characteristic of a primary cell?

A. It is recharged by an external power source.

B. It is recharged by an internal power source.

C. It is recharged by a chemical reaction.

D. It is recharged by a physical reaction.

ANSWER: C

QUESTION TYPE: Multiple Choice

TOPIC: Batteries

SCENARIO: None

EXPLANATION: A primary cell is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.

It is a battery that is not recharged.