

ENGINEERING

The first part of the course is a compulsory module in which you will study the fundamentals of engineering. This will include the study of mechanics, materials, and electrical and electronic engineering. You will also be introduced to the design process and the importance of safety in engineering.

The second part of the course is a compulsory module in which you will study the fundamentals of engineering. This will include the study of mechanics, materials, and electrical and electronic engineering. You will also be introduced to the design process and the importance of safety in engineering.