

PROBATION

Probation is a court-ordered period of supervision for individuals who have been convicted of a crime. It is often used as an alternative to incarceration for first-time offenders or those with minor offenses. The probation officer monitors the individual's behavior and ensures they comply with the terms of their sentence, such as attending counseling, maintaining employment, and staying out of legal trouble. Violations can result in the individual being sent to prison.

REENTRY

Reentry refers to the process of returning to a country after a period of absence, often following a conviction for a crime. For individuals with criminal records, reentry can be a complex process involving legal hurdles and potential restrictions. Some countries have strict laws regarding the admission of individuals with criminal backgrounds, and they may require a waiver or special permission to enter. The process often involves working with immigration lawyers and government agencies.
