

Fig. 1 Schematic diagram of the study design. The diagram illustrates the flow of participants through the study, starting from the initial study population and showing the attrition rates at each stage. The final population is divided into two groups: the study population and the control population.