

PROBATION

Probation is a court-ordered period of supervision for individuals who have been convicted of a crime. It is often used as an alternative to incarceration for first-time offenders or those with minor offenses. The probation officer monitors the individual's behavior, ensures they comply with court orders, and provides support and resources as needed. Violations of probation can result in a return to prison.

REENTRY

Reentry refers to the process of returning to a country after a period of absence, often following a conviction and a period of incarceration. It involves navigating complex legal requirements, including visa applications, background checks, and potential restrictions on employment and travel. Successful reentry depends on the individual's criminal history and the policies of the destination country.
