

OSHA is a federal agency that is responsible for enforcing safety and health laws. OSHA is part of the U.S. Department of Labor. OSHA's mission is to prevent workplace injuries, illnesses, and deaths.

OSHA is made up of several offices. Each office has a different role. OSHA's regional offices are responsible for enforcing safety and health laws in their respective regions. OSHA's headquarters is located in Washington, D.C.

Learning Objectives

Identify the OSHA mission statement.	Identify the OSHA regional offices.
Identify the OSHA headquarters.	Identify the OSHA state offices.
Identify the OSHA federal offices.	Identify the OSHA federal offices.

Learning Objectives

Identify the OSHA mission statement.	Identify the OSHA regional offices.	Identify the OSHA state offices.
Identify the OSHA headquarters.	Identify the OSHA federal offices.	Identify the OSHA federal offices.

Introduction

OSHA is a federal agency that is responsible for enforcing safety and health laws. OSHA is part of the U.S. Department of Labor. OSHA's mission is to prevent workplace injuries, illnesses, and deaths. OSHA is made up of several offices. Each office has a different role. OSHA's regional offices are responsible for enforcing safety and health laws in their respective regions. OSHA's headquarters is located in Washington, D.C.