CONCLUSIONS
The study has shown that the city of Kingston is a major center of economic activity in Jamaica. It is a hub for commerce, industry, and services. The city is also a major center of population, with a large and diverse population. The study has also shown that the city is facing a number of challenges, including traffic congestion, air pollution, and a lack of affordable housing. These challenges need to be addressed in order for the city to continue to grow and prosper.
