Time: Three 1-hour sessions

Introduction and Motivation (Set): Introduce students to the work and style of Vincent Van Gogh and the technique of contour drawing.

Instruction:

Through internet access, students will study several examples of Van Gogh’s Sunflower paintings. Discuss how Van Gogh practiced painting the same subject several times, exploring, alternating, and modifying his work with each piece. Discuss the effects of changing light on the flowers.

Explain and demonstrate contour drawing. Discuss how lines can have an influence on a drawing by varying the width of a line. Provide examples of contour drawings.

The teacher will demonstrate by drawing several contours of a bouquet of flowers. Demonstrate modified contour drawings.

Using one of the practice contour drawings, demonstrate coloring with the Sargent Art Water Color Crayons. Apply a wet brush to the colored surface for the “wow” factor.

Complete the contour drawing with the Sargent Water Color Crayons and accent the highlights with Sargent’s Acrylic Metallic Paint.

Activities:

(1) Guided Practice:

1. Students will practice three contour drawings.

2. Students will practice three modified contour drawings.
3. Students will practice using Sargent Water Color Crayons.

4. Students will practice apply water to the crayon paintings and explore the possibilities using the product.

(2) Independent Practice and Check for Understanding: Students will draw a modified contour drawing, color with Sargent Water Color Crayons, adding water to the crayon and exploring the possibilities of the effect.

(3) Closure: Students will have drawn a contour drawing in the style of Van Gogh and used Sargent's Water Color Crayons to complete their drawings.

Evaluation:

Level One – The student has completed an outstanding painting that is an original and a creative interpretation of Van Gogh's sunflowers. Excellent line qualities are shown in the contour drawing of the flowers and vase. The composition is extremely well organized and superior technical skills are demonstrated in the use of the crayon and watercolor product.

Level Two -- The student has completed an outstanding painting that is an original and a creative interpretation of Van Gogh's sunflowers. A strong line quality is shown in the contour drawing of the flowers and vase. A pleasing composition is created and good skills are shown in the use of the crayon water color product.

Level Three – The student has completed a painting of sunflowers. The contour line drawing is modified. The composition is poorly executed. The technical use of the crayon water colors is average and shows no signs of exploration.

Level Four – The students has completed a poor quality painting of sunflowers. No contour lines are evident nor is the composition balanced or exciting. The student has not mastered the use of the crayon water colors.

Extension: Sargent Metallic Acrylic Paint can then be applied for accents or highlights.
