PASSAGE LEXILE RANGES

Placing Your Students in Wordly Wise 3000®

We recommend that, in general, you begin students in the Wordly Wise i3000 level corresponding with their nominal grade level. The reading passages included in each lesson are written in accordance with The Lexile Framework® for Reading to reach measures recommended by rigorous state and national standards.

Teachers tell us that the reading passages can present challenges to students who require support in reading. For this reason, we offer the option for teachers to assign students either a secondary passage or primary passage at the beginning of each lesson. The secondary passages present the same rich content and context as the primary passages, but are written at a lower Lexile® measure. The only substantive difference between a primary and secondary passage is the relative readability of the sentences.

Providing students with these secondary passages allows students who require support in reading to successfully learn and utilize the same grade-level vocabulary as their peers.

See the chart below for the Lexile ranges of lesson and test passages in Wordly Wise 3000. If you do not know your students' Lexile measures, you may wish to visit the MetaMetrics®, Inc. website for more information: www.lexile.com/about-lexile/how-to-get-lexilemeasures/reader-measure/.
