Care and use

Before using the cookware for the first time, ensure it is thoroughly hand-washed. It is suitable for use on hobs only, including induction hobs; for optimum energy efficiency, place the cookware on hob rings that correspond to the base size, and avoid letting flames overlap the sides or handles. To enhance the longevity of the cookware, it is recommended to use silicone, wooden, or nylon utensils, and take care not to overheat it or allow it to boil dry. Never leave the cookware unattended while in use, as the non-stick coating may discolour, although this does not affect functionality. To prevent damage to ceramic hobs, always lift the cookware rather than dragging it across the surface, and be aware that screws may loosen over time; if so, carefully retighten them with a screwdriver. Always allow the cookware to cool before cleaning. While it is safe to use in a dishwasher with mild detergents, hand-washing with a mild detergent and a non-abrasive sponge is recommended, followed by thorough rinsing and drying. Never store the cookware while it is wet. Use heat-resistant oven gloves when handling hot cookware, and avoid exposing it to cold liquid. If you notice any damage to the cookware, dispose of it safely.
