The Process

What is Design Studio?

Design Studio is a rapid product development process that has been apart of Symmons for over 20 years. We work along side our sales team and customers to develop, design and produce unique custom products for large 100+ unit properties.

IDEATION

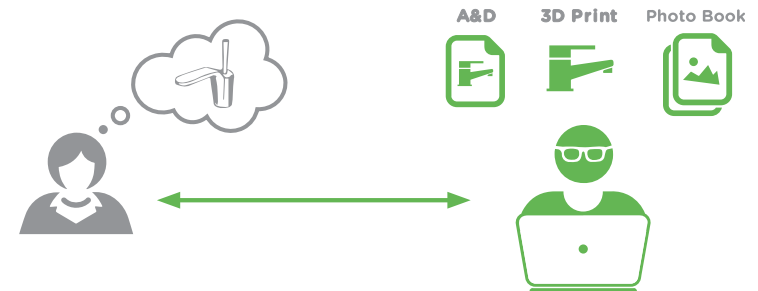

It starts with an idea and meeting with our Design Team or Sales Associate. From a napkin sketch to alterations on existing products. However the customer would like to convey their idea is how we get the process going. After laying out the scope of products and ideas we then move to the “Vision” phase.

VISION

Our Design Team takes these ideations and create architectural drawings or “A&D’s”. A&D’s include a photo realistic rendering and dimensional drawings. We encourage customers to mark up and redline these drawings to further revise until we reach a final design solution. Each A&D has a revision letter in order to track design progression and coordinate specific designs with quoting later on in the process.

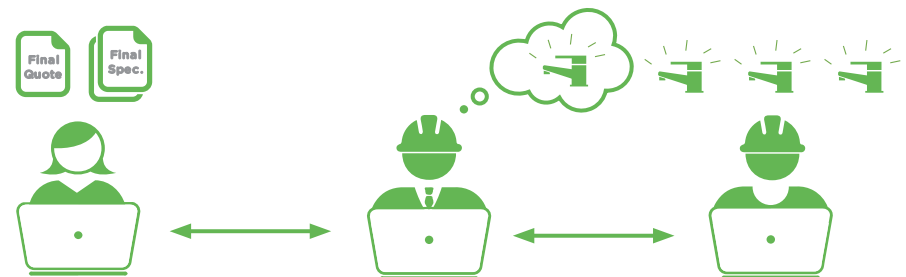

An image doesn’t always do the trick, So in final reviews of the vision phase we can provide 1:1 scale 3D printed models to help customers visualize their designs.

DEFINITION & CREATION

Our Project Management Team focuses on defining the project’s specification and quote as our engineers take that vision and solidify the internal function and manufacturability. Definition can be further explored with our ability to fabricate functioning metal mockups and submittals after customer design confirmation.

And lastly, “Creation” with a final commitment our Project Managers and Operations Team will create these equity building unique products on time and on budget.
